

Co-Conveners: UNC–Chapel Hill, Dept. of German and Slavic Languages and Literatures and Duke University, Dept. of German Languages and Literatures

Sunday, 31 March 2019

5:00 – 7:00 pm | UNC–Chapel Hill | Hamilton Hall 569

MARGARET REIF

Doctoral Candidate, Carolina-Duke Graduate Program in German Studies

Created Wild: Criminal Children and the Bourgeois Family in German Realism, 1850-1900

The literary figure of the criminal child in German Realism is framed not as a problem of rising industrialization and urbanization but rather as a problem of the emerging bourgeois family. Theodor Fontane's Grete Minde (1879) and Marie von Ebner-Eschenbach's Das Gemeindegeld (1887) demonstrate how the aestheticization of structures such as the bourgeois family extends to incorporate marginal figures, including the criminal child. Through the relationship between the criminal child and bourgeois family, Fontane and Ebner reveal both the allure and danger of the emerging bourgeois family as an organizing principle for late-nineteenth-century German and Austrian reality.

Maggie Reif is a PhD candidate in the Carolina-Duke Graduate Program in German Studies. Her research interests include the cultural history of childhood, postcolonial theory, and fairytales. Her dissertation "Disruptive Organizers: Wild Children in German Realism, 1850-1900" examines the literary movement of German Realism through the representation of children.

Moderator: Priscilla Layne | UNC–Chapel Hill, Department of German Languages and Literatures

For more information see: <https://ncgsws.web.unc.edu/>

CONVENERS: Carolina Seminars | The Carolina-Duke Graduate Program in German Studies | Duke University (Dept. of Germanic Languages & Literature | Dept. of History) | The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill (Center for European Studies | Dept. of Germanic and Slavic Languages & Literatures | Dept. of History)

CONTACT: Karen Hagemann (UNC-Chapel Hill, Dept. of History, email: hagemann@unc.edu)